Chairman's Corner

Housing prices in the region continued to climb in the first quarter 2005.

COG released its fifth annual Homeless Enumeration Report. More and more homeless people are living in a permanent housing situation, but homelessness in the region is not going away quickly.

We all agree that the big part of the solution is to provide more permanent supportive housing, which requires more regional collaboration. On October 25, 2005 a conference will be held for elected officials and policy makers to meet and learn more about ways that we as a region can work together. You are cordially welcomed to participate.

Homeless in region number 15,439, up 6.2%

The Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments released its fifth annual Homeless Enumeration Report. According to the report, the number of homeless people in the region rose by 6.2 percent from 14,537 in 2004 to 15,439 in 2005. Twenty-six percent (up from 23.6 percent in 2004) of formerly homeless people were placed in supportive housing programs. The rest 11,419 persons were literally homeless.

The Homeless Services Planning and Coordinating Committee believes that ending literal homelessness through providing supportive housing is an achievable vision for the region. With the exception of the District of Columbia, the number of literally homeless persons in the COG jurisdictions was quite small – about 1.4 persons per thousand for the region (not including the District). Regional cooperation will be imperative for the solutions to work.

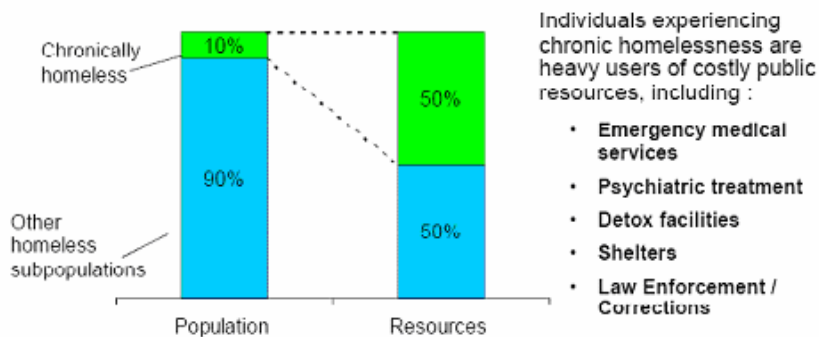

This report also pointed out that in 2005 there were 2,694 adults in the metropolitan region that met the definition of being chronically homeless. This population used about half of all emergency shelter resources while also exacting a great cost on other public systems as well.

We hope you find this report useful and will join regional leaders in participating in a conference about homeless issues on October 25, 2005.

Fairfax County Continues to Lead Region in Home Sales

Fairfax County led the region in home sales (4,268 units) during the first quarter 2005, followed by Montgomery and Prince George's counties (3,207 units and 3,051 units respectively). Loudoun County experienced a great increase in first quarter sales, with 300 more units sold during the first three months of 2005 than during the same period in 2004. Overall, the region saw a 6.7 percent increase in first quarter home sales between 2004 and 2005.

During the three-month period ending March 31, 2005 the average home sales price in the region rose to $424,387, a 24.3% increase over the average sales price during the same period in 2004. Average sales prices rose more than 17% in every jurisdiction except the City of Falls Church, where the increase was 7.2%. The highest increases occurred in Fairfax City (34.3%), Prince William County (31.1%) and Prince George's County (29.8%).

Time to Sell Decreases 35.4 Percent

- Homes in the COG region sold 35.4 % faster during the first quarter 2005 than during the same period last year ( down to 29 days from 46 days).
- Homes in the City of Manassas Park experienced a 40% decrease (down to 29 days from 17 days) in the number of days on market. Home sold fastest in Manassas Park City (17 days) and slowest in the City of Falls Church (42 days).

Loudoun County Leads Region in Residential Construction Permitting

During the first three months of 2005, Loudoun County issued 1,276 residential construction permits (22% of the region's total). Permitting activity was slowest in Fairfax City, where only seven residential construction permits were issued during the first quarter 2005.

The Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments (COG) is the regional organization of the Washington area's local governments and officials, plus area members of the Maryland and Virginia legislatures and the U.S. Congress. COG provides a focus for action on issues of regional concern such as housing policy, comprehensive transportation planning, economic development, and population growth and its implications for the region. COG is supported by contributions from participating local governments, federal and state government grants and contracts and through donations from local foundations and the private sector. If you would like to learn more about COG's involvement in the region's housing issues, please visit our website at www.mwcog.org or call Stacy Pethia, Housing Planner, at 202-962-3753.

The Washington Area Housing Partnership (WAHP) is a regional public-private partnership affiliated with, and located within, the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments. The mission of WAHP is to expand affordable housing opportunities within the metropolitan Washington region. In its role as an information clearinghouse, the Partnership maintains and reports data on various aspects of the region's housing market. This includes the Annual Regional Housing Report, an assessment of the region's rental housing stock and analysis of the Decennial Census of the Population and Housing, the American Housing Survey and the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act. If you are interested in learning more about the Partnership, please contact Keith Fleury, Senior Housing Planner, at 202-962-3346.
